id just get a refund if youve bought this game. it doesnt save progress, the music doesnt shut off in the settings which is kind of annoying after a while, and it isnt as expansive as ive seen other FREE idle games be. its a snooze fest and im really sad i had to pay a dollar to experience this.. Is it worth 99 cents? No. There are about 5 upgrades and once they are all upgraded many times, they start costing thousands which you can barely afford. After about 20 minutes there is no progression so you decide to log off. You join back to realize all of your progress has been reset! Summary: Not enough features/items for it to exceed cookie clicker.. I usually like to play clicker games, and when I saw this game, the description, and the screenshots, I thought it looked pretty good and added to my wishlist. Today I bought it, along with a couple other games. This game is possibly one of the worst games I've ever played, let alone payed for. Allow me to elaborate why. 1. Settings - Immediately after launching the game for the first time, I instantly looked to find an option to disable the loud and annoying music; however it doesn't work. Muting the in game music via the settings effectively does nothing, therefore to mute it, you must mute the volume on your pc, also muting all notification sounds and other things that you may need to hear if they notify you. 2. Gameplay - The visuals are extremely boring. There are 5 things that you can buy that automate your cookie earnings, as well as 5 upgrades to those things. The upgrades are easy to acquire, and once you own everything and all the upgrades, there's nothing else to the game; nothing else to strive for or work towards - In the end I had 11 minutes on this game, and I had completed it in 9. Don't restart the game, either, as you will lose all your progress. 3. Motivation - Once you have bought the game, there is nothing to play for. The game doesn't save, the settings don't work, there are no achievements for this game, and nothing in-game to work towards. Overall - The game isn't fun. It goes against everything that games are supposed to be - even for a clicker game. I'm probably even going to request a refund for this game, as even though it was cheap I still don't think I got my moneys' worth.. Out of all the games I own this is the worst.. Day 2: Still no grandmas. Best game, 10/10. Oh god.. Best clicker game ever. Worth every penny. Better than cookie clicker.
